

Saturday August 8th Update:

About 40% of town is still out. I spoke with the JCP&L Forman this morning. They ran into a few problems last night. One major problem was an incoming high voltage feed which they could not work on once it started to rain. They were also expecting delivery of some replacement parts which came today. They are working to get the Substation fully operational.

There are a number of line crews in town. Once the Substation is energized they will check the lines and transformers.

The revised estimate to have power restored is 4PM today.

Stay safe,
Mayor Dan Mahler
